From April 2021, however, I can visit my laboratory and talk with friends and professors. I'm feeling much better now!

■Is there anything you are worried about?

I am concerned that sharing small things is becoming difficult. I realized that I often got inspiration or something unexpected in passing conversation. Now I value spending time with friends on line. I sometimes share job hunting information with them. I can refresh my mind from chatting!

■Could you recommend some websites, videos, etc., that you enjoy at home?

I enjoy watching movies at home. There are a lot of video streaming services, and each one has its specialty. I thoroughly examined them and chose the highly satisfactory services. I love watching action films at full volume, so I use headphones and enjoy their gripping scenes as loud as I want.

■Could you send a message to international students?

Have you ever heard of ISL? I am a representative of ISL, a student organization offering services for international students who need supports. For several years we have listened to international students' problems and organized many events for promoting exchange between international and Japanese students. Since 2020, however, our activities have been limited due to the coronavirus outbreak. We needed to explore many ways to continue our services.

Currently we are preparing for new activities in consideration of infection prevention. If you have any troubles or concerns, please contact us. You can see what we are and what we did at our SNS. We will post event news soon, so please have a look!
